

JURLING THE MUSTACHE.

Some Points on the Custom Given by a Barber.

"How long has the custom of crimping the mustache been in vogue?" was asked a dapper little barber who runs a shop on Washington street, says the Boston Globe.

"It was first introduced in the United States about four years ago," he replied, "but it was known in Europe half a century back."

"Does the crimping of the mustache injure the growth in any way?"

"Yes, very seriously. You see, human hair is naturally oily, which indicates a healthy growth. If a single hair is placed under a powerful microscope it will be found to resemble a pipistem—that is, a little tube runs its entire length. Through this channel flows a current of oil. Now, if this is dammed up, it has the same effect as binding the stalk of a plant; the ripe sap is cut off and decay follows. Therefore, in ninety-nine cases out of one hundred, where the mustache is crimped it finally begins to fall out, much to the grief of its owner. Where there is unusual vigor this result does not obtain, which accounts for the exceptions named."

"Do all your customers have their mustaches curled?"

"Oh, no; it's the middle-aged and young fellows who carry the style. When a man begins to wrinkle up and his knee joints begin to rattle he cares very little for those finer points in his personal appearance."

"Do the dandy police officers like to have a curl put into their whiskers?"

"Do they? Well, I should think so. There are some very handsome men who wear the uniform of the city, and when they go on duty they look as neat as wax. A low-hanging mustache would not harmonize with the ensemble of these stately guardians of the peace. It is seldom one of them goes out on an ostensible hunt for crime with his mustache in the condition described."

PARISIENNES AT THE BATH.

Public Bathing in the River Seine—Many Frenchwomen Expert Swimmers.

The Seine is a narrow, greenish, snake-like river, and it doesn't look inviting from a distance. But on entering the swimming baths formed of boat-like sides, containing the dressing rooms, it looks clear and cool, says a Paris correspondent of the Providence Journal. Black bathing dresses trimmed with red braid can be hired for a franc upward, and hundreds of ladies, with their children, daily afford themselves amusement at these places. There is no effort at fashion, gentlemen not admitted, and the top being covered by canvas to shield them from the eyes of the people on embankment or boulevards. Swimmers among the attendants are frequent, and they dive and float, swim and sink at will, and teach the children and ladies to do the same.

Some of the Frenchwomen are expert swimmers, and they go around in their black, baggy suits, chasing about the platforms, eating sandwiches or drinking penny sirups or clarets, and end the performance by diving into the water and swimming a race. Trapezes, swings, etc., are suspended above the water and gymnastic exercises are indulged in by the younger and more ambitious.

On leaving the baths they dry their hair sufficiently, put a crimped peruke over their own straight locks, a dash of powder and a bit of lip salve (a stick of which every Frenchwoman carries in her pocket) to slightly color and eliminate any dryness, and with a deft adjustment of the inevitable black veil, my lady is well coiffed—and if her dress be suitable, can take a drive before going home.

A Dog's Love for a Bell.

That dogs become quite attached to other things than men and places is clearly proven by the conduct of Will Thornton's pointer dog Leo, says the Talbotton (Ga.) New Era. Before the Thornton house was burned Leo made that hotel his headquarters, and always appeared there regularly at meal times to be fed. Several weeks after the burning of the hotel the bell which had been used on the Weston house was placed on the Weston house, and the first time this bell rung after its removal Leo was seen to run over to the Weston house, where he showed unmistakable signs of joy at the familiar sound of the bell. He had never shown any fondness for any person at the Weston house, and the fact that he has deserted his owner and taken up at the new place since the first day the bell was put up proves beyond a doubt that his attachment for the old bell caused him to change his residence.

They even deny little children the privilege of putting out the eyes of pedestrians down in Tucson. Just read what the Star says:

There is not a day passes but what Marshal Roach takes away and destroys sling shots from boys in the streets. They do considerable damage and often the parents have to pay for a window or glass broken. The marshal wishes us to state that it is the duty of the parents or guardians to attend to the boys and take the sling shots away from them and not annoy him with that duty.

There is a question as to whether Co. G will be able to attend the encampment at Tucson. There are not sufficient members who can leave their business long enough to attend although but eighteen men and officers would be required to make a showing that would carry off the first prize. If the encampment will change the place of meeting to Tombstone, our citizens will pay all expenses and put up the money in advance for all companies to come here.

A Mystery.

How the human system ever recovers from the bad effects of the nauseous medicines often literally poured into it for the supposed relief of dyspepsia, liver complaint, constipation, rheumatism and other ailments is a mystery. The mischief done by bad medicines is scarcely less than that caused by disease. If they who are weak, bilious, dyspeptic, constipated or rheumatic, would often be guided by the experience of invalids who have thoroughly tested Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, they would in every instance obtain the speediest aid derivable from rational medication. This medicine is a searching and at the same time a thoroughly safe remedy, derived from vegetable sources, and possessing, in consequence of its basis of pure spirits, properties as a medicinal stimulant not to be found in the fiery local bitters and stimulants often resorted to by the debilitated, dyspeptic and languid.

Plucky American Travelers.

Allen and Sachtleben, the Americans who are making a tour of the world on bicycles, have made a signal demonstration of their pluck and endurance by ascending Mt. Anarat without guides in the face of great difficulties. During the last twenty seven hours' climb they could find no water and were obliged to quench their thirst with snow. The way, too, was full of danger, as they made the last 600 feet of the ascent on the verge of a tremendous gorge, where a single false step or one weak place in the snow would have proved fatal. Reaching the top they planted an American flag on an ice pick and fired a salute with their pistols.

Fruits and Alfalfa.

The report of the governor contains some very interesting figures, showing the resources of central Arizona in an agricultural way.

There are 55,000 acres bearing crops this year under the Arizona, Grand, Maricopa, and Salt River Valley caasals, as follows:

Alfalfa.....	13,000 acres
Orchards & Vineyards.....	5,000 "
Grain.....	37,000 "

and there have been raised under these four canals this year fully 40,000,000 pounds of grain and 200,000,000 pounds of alfalfa. Of the 5,000 acres in fruit, 500 acres are in oranges.

Owing to the rush attending the printing of the constitution which is provided the readers of the PROSPECTOR to-night, the usual amount of reading matter is unavoidably restricted. It might be in order to state that the $40 allowed by the convention for its publication, did not pay quite one-third of setting up the type.

The PROSPECTOR furnishes its readers to-night with the first copy of the constitution as framed by the convention at Phenix. Read and discuss it. If it is good it can stand dissection. If it has a few infirmities they can be doctored under Article 21. To condemn it as a whole for trifling errors is not becoming. Let us adopt it and doctor it afterward. To kill it means suicide.

The Arrowhead Reservoir company, having in charge the construction of large storage reservoirs in the mountains north of San Bernardino on the headwaters of the Mojave river and its tributaries, have advertised for the construction of three large tunnels, one 4,900 feet in length, one 3,600 feet and one 2,000 feet, making a total of 11,500 feet of tunnel.
